

NOTRE DAME OF MARYLAND UNIVERSITY

Notre Dame of Maryland University is a private, Catholic university established in 1895 with the mission to educate leaders to transform the world. NDMU is a comprehensive University that is home to Maryland's only women's college and offers a wide variety of full- and part-time undergraduate, graduate, doctoral, and certificate programs for women and men. The University enrolls approximately 2300 students and has Schools of Arts, Sciences, and Business; Education; Nursing; and Pharmacy. Additionally, the University also offers programs for adult students fully online and at several locations across the state. NDMU is located on a beautiful 60-acre wooded campus in the northern Baltimore residential neighborhood of Homeland.

THE HISTORY

Founded in 1873 by the School Sisters of Notre Dame as the Notre Dame of Maryland Collegiate Institute for Young Ladies and Preparatory School for Little Girls

In 1895, Notre Dame received state approval to begin four-year baccalaureate-level instruction. The April 1896 College charter from the State of Maryland granted the right to award degrees up to and including the doctorate. Notre Dame offers degree programs at the bachelor's, master's, post-master's, and doctoral level.

On September 9, 2011—the 116th anniversary of the first day of college classes were offered on the campus—the institution was renamed Notre Dame of Maryland University. NDMU has four academic schools: Arts, Sciences, and Business; Education; Nursing; and Pharmacy.

Marylou Yam, Ph.D., is the 14th president of the University; her presidency began on July 1, 2014.

In March 2015, NDMU received non-governmental organization (NGO) status with the United Nations. NDMU is the only college or university in Maryland to have such a designation.

In April 2018, NDMU launched the Women's Leadership Institute of Baltimore to serve as a convener of women in the Baltimore region to address issues of gender inequity.

In 2020, the University is celebrating its 125th year of educating leaders to transform the world.
